A LICOUR S POROUS STRENGTHENING
PLASTERS.

UNITED STATES STANDARD POROUS
PLASTERS.

HISTORY—ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS are the results of studies and experiments of Dr. Schoest, of South Carolina, and other cederated physicians; also of Homes H. Day, the distinguished manufacturer of rubber goods; and of Thomas Allocck, Chemias and Mamber of the College of Pharmacy of New York, new General Allocck, Ed., Ed.

Step by step this commodity has attained its unprecedented fame. They are universally approved. They are port, strengthen, and sid the growth of muscles. They appear to have a poculiar effect upon the nerves, silaying irritability, while supplying warputh. They seem also local irritability, while supplying warputh. They seem also local irritability better they are all the irrelability of healthy seems are induced.

THE FOROUS PLASTERS OF MR ALVONOUS

WEAKNESS AND PATIGUE.

They are now widely used in hospitals, both in America and Europe, and approved by all physicians. They give intancilate relief in lumbage, as well as in pains of the sides and back, whether they proceed from weakness, fatigue, or other causes.

fatigue, br other causes.

THE GREAT PLASTER OF THE DAY.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS.—Dr. Valentine Mott, By.
Johnson, of Hartford, and Dr. Myers, of Savannah, have spoken of them in the highest terms. The great Mott said:
"They were all that could be hoped for in a plaster—
simple, cleanly, and adhesive; perfect as artificial supporters of the nuncles, and for pains, because of their saild, counter-irritant qualities, usually at once giving case."
Local weakness of the back, breast, and side, always benefited, thus curring lumbage in a few hours, sometimes in a few minutes.

In serous, heart, and chest affections, their use causes an absorption or evaporistion of water, by which dropsy of the beart and hydrothoran have undoubtedly been curely.

They appear to have a peculiar effect upon the news, allaying irritability while supplying warnth. They seen to accumulate electricity and aid the circulation of the blood through the part where applied, by which healthy actions are induced.

PARALVSIS CURED.

was applied, she was as helpless as a baby. Mrs. Sally Elliott, Springfield, Mass.

ELECTRIC CONDITION.

The peculiar phosphoroscent light sunited by Allock's Porous Plaster when separating from the muslin may be seen when taken off in the dark. This quality is supposed to be absorbed by the pores of the skin, causing an equilibrium of the circulation, acting equally upon the nerson fluid as upon the blood. They are certified as innocent, or wonderfully curstive, by all.

AS AN EXTERNAL TONIC

Valuable in many affections of the chest and beris, appecially when of a nervous character, they increase the vigour, because they warm are vitalized the part upon which applied. It is said they are a sure preventitive of Ferre and Agne when worn upon the abort ribs or the left side.

FROM WILLIAM BOSTOCK, WHOLESALE DRUGGIST.

RENET B. PRANDREN, LIVERPOOL.

241, Stanford-street, Ashton-under-Lyna,
Dear Sir,—I send you a few of the geoderful cure performed by Allocek's Povons Phasters. They note speks in the highest praise of them. As a local application they are unequalled.

SEVERE COUGH. SEVERE COUGH.

A gentlemen, residing in Wellington-road, had a very bed cough all the winter, and all he tried did him no good, when he heard of the celebrated Proyus Plaster. He applied one to his chest with such marked effect that in two hours he was relieved, and in a few days perfectly curved.

This gentleman recommended the Plasters to a friend who had tightness of the cheet and a bed could, and could scarcely breathe. This party applied a format Plaster. In half an hour he was relieved and in the day cured.

SEVERE PAIN IN THE KNERS.

Mr. Thomas Fielding, Righ Bank, Openshow, nor Machicoter, gives the following:—"On returning from Russis, where I had been for some time, I was taken with vary severe pains in the knees. For the rus exceeding the most executioning pain, and was unable to more off the courch. Seeing one of your advertisements, I st enter the same of Brandreths. Pills and applied one of Allock's Putous Placters to each knee, one on each foot, and one on the leath. In two days I felt so much better that I was able to write about, and more—it is about a month size I applied, the Plasters—I feel perfectly restored to balth, and is about to return to Russia to follow my usual compaction."

IN DIABRHGA AND PAINS OF THE BOWELS the benefit derived from these Vegetable Plasters is stay wonderful. The pain and difficulty are often instally removed. Their counter-irritant qualities here disably their beneficial tendency in a manner highly granting to the physicians.

SUPPOCATING PAIN CURED.

A hidy was for some time subject to a severe effection of the chost, similar to spasmedig asthma, which specificable there when she lay down at might. So fellows the would die from sufforation; and both hereal sales friends despired of any relief, as the best physicians had failed of imparting any benefit. She was at length induced to use those Vagetable Plasters, one of which effects a perfect and radical cure.

THE FREE SELECTORS' PROTECTION SOCIETY.—
In commenting on the establishment of a society bearing the above title, in which Mr. H. Beanett, M. L.A., took an active part, the Tamworth Weekly New observes:—
"There can be no objection to the formation of a Free Selectors' Protection Society. It will do good, if it only bring men together to talk over their affairs, and discuss public questions. But surely all this can be done without adopting extravagant views, or using intemperate language. It is not needful to array class against class, or interest against interest. There is no real antagonism between the bona-fide free selector and the squatter. It may happen, in particular instances, that the latter is selfish and avaricious, and would oppress the "poor man" if he could; but this is not true as a rule. The settlement of an agricultural oppulation on the lands of the colony must be productive of advantage to those engaged in pastoral pursuits, inasmuch as all their profits do not arise from wool and tallow—they make something out of beef and mutton. Indeed, in a district like this, the free selector to be really successful must endeavour to become a squatter on a small scale—he must try to own s flock of sheep, or herd of cattle, as well as till his paddocks; and to do this he must endeavour to procure an alteration in the present land laws, which do not allow sufficient area for the uniting of farming with pastoral pursuits. If the new protectorate will turn its attention to this subject, discuss it fully, and finally take action to bring about a long-desired and obvious reform, it will deserve the best thanks of all interested in the progress and prospecity of the country; but more tirides against squatters and their supposed repactity and trickery cand to no possible good. They have no special rights beyond what their captal and energy procure them. If they transgress either the laws of the land, or the laws of civilized according to their deserts. But it is simply abourd to suppose that, as a class, they are THE FREE SELECTORS' PROTECTION SOCIETY.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 20, 1873.

MR. MACKENZIE, who is a gentleman skilled in knowing a black diamond when he sees it, and has obtained therefore a wide colonial reputation, has been sent on an errand of benevolence which, but for the broken skin, it not bones, which his labour has brought him, would be a subject of pleasing reflection for the term of his natural life. Victoria had consulted many advisers, who were charged to produce the substance she especially desired to possess. Of rather an imperious temper, she had resented the failure of other scientific men, who, although in her belief they had coals in abundance before them, could not see a scuttleful. From the determination with which she required coal where there was some conjuring process. The reference we have seen in various publications to Mr. Mackenstein travels would indicate that our Victorian districts. rian friends looked not to nature as in anywise concerned in the affair; but regarded the in-quiry as a political controversy. The ques-tion was not so much whether coal could be found, as whether a succession of geological savans were disposed to find it. There is none so blind as those who won't see; and when Mr. MACKENZIE disappointed the desires of gentle men bent upon obtaining coal, they turned round upon him and gave him to understand that his incapacity was clear from his report, and that they would wait until some pleasant geologist should point them out the favoured

After all there is coal in Victoria. Travelling over a region as large as a kingdom, Mr. Mac KENZIE has discovered as much coal as would doubtless compose a heap not less than that once owned by Dickens's famous golden Dustman. But coal is worthless under certain conditions. It is awkward to get at when it is only two feet thick. It is very disagreeable when it is full of flaws and dirty admixtures; and it would not do for mail steamers, for example if it were found of the thickness of a foot or two some two or three hundred miles from the coast. These were conditions very offensive but nevertbeless not so much in the power o a coal examiner to remove, as an editorial speculator, who can stir the fire and kindle a blaze without as much coal as would fill a tobacco pipe. Some parts of the report of Mr.
MACKENZIE are such as we might expect from a gentleman who had met with an accident by the way, and had not received much gratitude at its conclusion.
He was carried to one specimen of coal which was asserted to be squeets. The description he was asserted to be superb. The description he gives of all his experience is of a very dis-couraging kind. It is the same thing whether he ones to the east or to the west, to the north or all over most impracticable country, and to find in fact where there was anything to see only what was promising to ignorance, and to be obliged to give as the common verdict, there is no seam of coal. The report from Stockyard Creek is, however, the most remarkable. He was told there was a valuable seam of coal. He found hard shale and indurated clay, and he asks with astonishment how any person could have supposed it to contain a workable seam; and adds that for twenty-five years he has never seen one of so little promise. We may fancy how the imagination of the gentlemen who induced the Government to send a cientific man on a wild-goose chase has been carried away by the passion for coal.

But it is only fair to remember that if there has been no coal there has been a little speculation with respect to imaginary coal fields. They have existed in the minds of gentlemen They have existed in the minds of gentlemen who make shares with wonderful expedition. It was expected that there were some even in Victoria who had got all their preparations ready to launch a coal company. We have known coal to be borrowed from one field and exhibited as the produce of another, with great shareholding success and much ruin to the creditors. In Californian mining, without prospecting or without even looking for land, it had been merely taken fer granted that a mountain which could be seen could also be described, the whole being the work of a very limited company, and confined entirely to scrip. It was insinuated that some gentlemen who have formed no flattering opinions of our "small coal man" had their shares all ready for issue, and only wanted the signal of a complaisant opinion. Mr. the signal of a complaisant opinion. Mr. MACKENEIE has long had the reputation for both skill and honesty.

The Argus, with much resignation, bows to the geological fact. If it were another question, it might be treated with proper indignation. It seems now acknowledged that the coal is not there in any form that would make it auxiliary to the greatest of Victoria. make it auxiliary to the greatness of Victoria.

This colony fully sympathies with her disconsolate sister. Had it been in our power as a community we should certainly not have refused anything she desired. In proof of this we point to Mr. MACKENZIE, who, though in our employment, has been allowed to go on a dangerous journey, in tempestuous weather, when the wind blew so heavily, sometimes with hail, as to imperil his anchorage and actually at last to lay him in the dust. Still we did not offer any objection to his serving a known friend. We never hinted that he should betray the country that looked to him. We knew that he had not betrayed that which he left; but fortune has not favoured our generous intentiens, and it now is patent that there is no coal in Victoria worth is patent that there is no coal in Victoria worth fetching.

We, however, have considerable stores, which, on easy terms, we shall be most ready to supply. It is right to be neighbourly. In the life of Dr. Johnson it is recorded that he was suddenly sent for by OLIVER GOLD-SMITH, who was in great distress in consequence of the violence of his landlady, who was deterof the violence of his landlady, who was determined to have her rent. OLIVER had nothing in hand but the "Vicar of Wakefield," that celebrated story. Dr. JOHNSON stopped to read it, and GOLDSMITH with anxious face waited for his verdict. While he was waiting, in burst a girl, with a request from a fallow-lodger as poor as himself, saying, "Picase, sir, mother wishes you to lend her a chamber-pot of coals." We are quite sure that, under similar circumstances, even though the distress should not be so abject, our Government will crown its kindly intentions Government will crown its kindly intentions by giving one. In that case the poverty of the one alleviated the still greater deficiency of the other. In this case we shall give of our abundance, not eked out in small vessels, but sending whole fleets to assist our great relative in obtaining that supremacy is steam to which she is entitled by manifest destiny. Government will crown its kindly intentions

ALTHOUGH the actuarial opinions embodied in the report of the Mutual Provident Society discuss several points submitted, the one great question which forms the body of the whole case relates to the equity of the present mode of distributing the profits. It should be noticed that there is no accusation against the existing system that it has caused an excessive disribution of the profits generally, except so far as relates to the amount divided at the end of the first five years. It seems to be admitted that the bonues then allotted were extraordinary in amount. But since that time, the complaint is not so much that the total amount of bonuses is too large, but that it is wrongly distributed, too much going to some policies, and too little to others. It should be noticed also that no pecific contract is admitted, which should make the present system binding. With the first hundred policies there was a specific agreement, but their number had become reduced to thirty-seven, at the date of the fourth investigation, and is now only about thirty. The power to adjust the distribution of profits from time to time is reserved, and the question from time to time is reserved, and the question at issue, therefore, is not one of contract but one of policy. The twenty-second by-law provides, inter alia, that "no appropriation of profits shall be made until it shall have been certified by one or more professional actuaries that according to the most c rrect calculation of which the case will admit, the interests of all the contributors to this Society and of persons having claims. will admit, the interests of all the contributors to this Society, and of persons having claims thereon, in possession or expectancy, are, by the proposed scheme of division or distribution, fairly dealt with and secured." It is precisely the point that is here required to be certified to that is disputed. It is denied by the Society's Actuary that the interests of all the contributors are fairly dealt with her all the contributors are fairly dealt with by the existing mode of distribution, and the English referees have concurred in supporting ance including bonus additions. Now the early bonuses were large, partly because the rate of interest then obtainable was higher than it is now, but principally because they were calculated on a wreng principle. The cake to be cut was unusually large, and the slices given to the old members were over-weight; and if the profits of the current quinquennium are to be divided on the basis of the value thus obtained, the excess will be still further aggravated. To him that hath much will more be given, and from him that hath hittle, some will be taken away. The past bonus is past; and though it may have been secured partly fairly and partly unfairly, it will not be tsuched. But ought its DEPASTURING SHEEP ON SELECTIONS.—On Friday hast, an experte application was made before Mr. Justice Hargrawe, in Chambers, for an interim injunction (under the Common Law Procedure Act, sect. 17) in the section of Joschim v. O'Shanasev. It appeared that on the 20th February last the plaintif, John Thomas Joschim (a minor, aged sixteen), conditionally purchased from the Government 320 acres of land near Mosma, which had previously formed portion of the run known as Moria, of which the defendant, Mr. John O'Shanasev, is the Crown Issues. On the 19th March Joschim entered into possession; and on the 26th June following, the defendant caused 3000 of his heep; to be driven upon the land, and continued to depastive them there daily since that time, refusing to allow plaintiff to drive them off or impound them. It was averved hat this flock had rendered the selection as bare as a rock, and if they were allowed to continue feeding there, an resparable injury to the land would be the result. An action of tree-pass had been commenced, and an injunction was cought to restrain the defendant from keeping his shoep upon the selection until the verdict. Upon these facts being deposed to, his Honor granted the injunction as sought, Mr. Robertson (of M'Carthy and Robertson) appeared in support of the application.

the contributors are tarify dealt with by the existing mode of distribution, and the English referees have concurred in supporting that denial.

The alleged injustice is that the old members, get an under advantage in the distribution of bonuses as compared with the new members, and it is proposed to alter this for the future. It is desirable that there should be a ciear understanding as to what is not proposed as well as to what is proposed. It is not proposed to increase the scale of premiums in Table A—that is in the ordinary insurances. Nor is it imposed to increase the premiums in Table A—that is in the ordinary insurances. Nor is it imposed to increase the premiums in Table B—and J, for those who are already entered. All bargains, even though they may have been bad ones, will be strictly preserved. But bargains for the Society, they will be corrected for the future. This distribution of profits is not a bargain, and can be altered from an inequitable to an equitable scale.

The reasons given for this alteration are, first, that it is interiorated by the content of the society, it is to the interest of old members are unfairly dealt with in the distribution of profits, then there is a discouragement to fresh entrances. Flut it is of the utmost importance to the content that the was deast too be accounted to the content indiux of new risks. Anything for the general interest of the Society, it is to the interest of old members are unfairly dealt with in the distribution of profits, then there is a discouragement to fresh entrances. Flut it is of the utmost importance to the content that the was deast too be accounted to the content of the c had conducted it. The meeting then broke up.

LECTURE.—The first of a series of four lectures on the "Reformation in England," was delivered last evening in the St. Peter's schoolroom, Forkes-street, by the Rev. G. H. Moreton. One of the objects of these lectures is to raise funds to liquidate the dobt remaining on the handsome schoolrooms which have lastely been exasted. The herge room was well filled: the chair being taken by Mr. Walcott. The lecture last evening was confined to the sevents comesced with the great religious sevelution during the reign of ficency V111. The character of that monarch was depicted, and about sketches of Cardinal Wolsey, Tyndale, and other complements persons of the time given. The incidents connected with the printing of the New Testument, and its fattreduction into, and distribution through various parts of England were also narrated by the rev. gentlemen, and a vose of thanks was warmly seconded to him at the close of this very interesting discourses.

existence to be made a reason for continuing to give too much?

Apart, however, from all consideration of the much and the forth is reason, that the value of a policy is no criterion of the amount it has contributed origing the quinquennium to the profits. The policies of men who begin to insure in old age are necessarily more valuable than those of young men; yet and the profits of the accisety than the latter have done. The premium on the old man's policy is of course higher than that on the young man's, because the risk is supposed to be nearer matrity, but it does not yield to the society a larger preportionate rate of profit, and sylpherofron should it be entitled to alternative the society and the profit of the according to the value of the policy is will come in for a larger share, the suppose, for instance, that a father aged 51, and a son aged 21, go on the same day therefore should it be entitled to alternative the profit of the person plan of distribution, the policy is will come in for a larger share, a secreting to the preast plan of distribution, the profit of the person plan is a suppose, for instance, that a father aged 51, and a son aged 21, go on the same day the suppose of the preast plan of distribution, the profit of the person plan is distributed as whit more towards the profit of the person plan is a plan to the profit of the person plan is a plan to the profit of the person plan is a larger share.

The Mayon replied: I shall be glad to meet the wishes of the alderman by submitting the matter for the consideration of the Inspector-General of Police, with a view to prevent any violation of the Police Act in the locality referred to.

Alderman Keppax saked,—"1. Alderman CHAPMAN assid that it had been reported to him that there were eighteen men kept pumping with one pump, in order to keep the waterholes dry at Botany. Alderman OATLEY thought was very unfair for Alderman Chapman to bring the matter forward in the way he had done. The siderman had made a statement founded on mere rumour. He ought first to have ascortained the truth before making such a statement in the Council.

Alderman Moorr moved,—"That the Corporation of the city of Sydney do invite the co-operation of the suburban municipalities to the following:—"I. From and after the lest sky of January, 1875, all the tolls connected with Sydney and the suburban municipalities to be sholished, and in lieu thereof to substitute a wheel tax and a horse tax. 2. Sydney, and each of the suburban municipalities, to collect the authorized taxes on all public and private vehicles and all borses within their own boundaries, and to keep the roads in repair with such taxe. 3. The Government to be solicited to discharge all liabilities of the various road trusts, amounting to 2. In that date, and all further road granute to cease at same time. 4. The roads to be apportioned to seach municipality by the postal officer. He had left a blank in the motion because he did not know the amount when he placed the motion on the business paper. He had since ascertained, however, that it was about 122,000. There were large numbers of tradesmen's vehicles, and other vehicles, driven about the city day after day, cutting up the streets, but which paid not taxes, and he thought it was quite time the Corporation took steps to collect taxes from them. If the City Council commenced action in the matter, he felt persuaded that the suburban municipalities would scon follow suit, and join in the movement. There were six road trusts near Sydney, and they employed a large number of men as secretaries, surveyors, overseers, tollkeepers, &c., and a great deal of the money that was collected went to pay those officials. He thought it would be conomy to do away with the trusts, and get a hill passed to enable the various municipalities to collect tolle in the way proposed by the motion. The read trusts had be

He explained that the Mayor, in company with Alderman I saines and missient, waited upon the Minister for wharf we leased for a period twelve menths, be adopted. He explained that the Mayor, in company with Alderman I saines and missient, waited upon the Minister for peranisation, because the Government were having a proper survey made of the harbour, with a view to the laying down of some plan for the construction of jetties. This survey will take about twelve months. In the meantime it was desirable that the wharf should be let, and the short period of twelve months and boom fixed upon in consequence of the action being taken by the Government, as he had explained.

In the absence of Alderman Macinton, Alderman Charman moved,—"That the report of the Finance Committee, received this day, recommending that in definition to the sum of £160 4s. 11d. be awarded for the purchase of additional land, and for interest on the claim, be adopted."

Alderman OATLEY thought, to say the least of it, that the remarks which had been made by Aldermen Ghapman and Murphy were very unkind. He considered that the works which Mr. Bell had carried out were a credit to the Council. (Hear, hear.) And they had been carried out at a reasonable expenditure indeed, and had given satisfaction to the majority of the citizens.

Alderman MURPHY: The resolution itself suggested a weakness in the dam.

Alderman Rows thought that a great deal too much had been said against the City Engineer, who had always been considered a good and efficient officer. For the Council to be asked a further sum of £200 for a work of such magnitude seemed a very small and reasonable request. He understood that the turf had not thoroughly set, when the late heavy rains came and damaged it. And everything should be done to repair any damage that had occurred, and to strengthen the embankment it necessary.

PETTY THEFT ON BOARD SHIPS IN HARBOUR.

—A decision given by the Marine Board, yesterday, ought to operate as a whelesome warning to a class who have long been a source of annoyance to the shipowners and shipmasters in this port. If has been considered "all fair and showe board" that the smaller craft should levy black mail on the larger vessels. In carrying out this idea, rope and small stores have occasionally changed hands, either by stealing or purchase for one-leath their value from sallors and officers of the "big ships." By virtue of the powers of the Navigation Act, the Marine Board is authorised to deal with this species of offenders, even after having boen put through by the ordinary Courts, as in the case referred to in our shipping columns, from which it will be seen that the Board, with the view of putting down a practice only too prevalent, has made a severe example of the first case brought before them.

FOUND LING INSTITUTE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE BERALD.

SIR.—Kindly allow me to reply to the letter of the Rev. G. Vidal, published in your paper of Saturday last. (The letter of Dean Cowper will doubtless be carefully read and considered.) I cannot help regretting that the reverend gentleman did not call on some of the ladies of the committee, or at least wait to read our circular before throwing cold water on our efforts. If he had taken the trouble to attend one of our meetings we should have heard with attention and respect to his superior age and knowledge any remark he had offered, even if we were not converted to his views.

We do not wish to influence any. We simply ask all to read our circular, to compare it with the cases most have seen or heard of, and trust that God will send us kind hearts and able hands to aid us.

As gentlemen and elergymen, both the reverend authors should rather support and encourage us in this work. If the Benevoent Asymin is so all sufficient for the necessities of Sydney, how is it that such cases of real distress are constantly brought forward? I know little of the working of this institution, but from all I have heard, there is room for improvement.

There is another question I trust those gentlemen will consider. Is it not a fact that nearly all of the women who are admitted to their pet refuge do not improve either in moral or religious character while they are immates of it? What is the per centage of souis supposed to be saved? It is just considered as a place to furnish food and rest during a time of trial; not as a home where those whe have the with will have the power to reform. Few of the women remain more than a short time, and, siter they leave, there is no necount of them. Several ladies spoke on this subject. But we do not wish to interfere with cither the Benavolent Asylum or the rev. gentlemen who have its interests at heart. I, for one, nost sincerely hope that the sit which has been made will tend to reform any mismanagements at heart. I, for one, nost sincere

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—As one of the ladies present on the 6th instant at the meeting held for the purpose of initiating proceedings towards the establishment of the above institution, I perused with much interest the letters of the Rev. Canon Vidal, and "A Lover of Truth," in your issue of Saturday.

It appears to me that both writers have put a wrong interpretation upon the statement made by one of the speakers, viz.: "That children born in the Benevolent Asylum seldom lived more than a few weeks or mouths."

There can be no question of the efficient management of that valuable institution, and I know for a fact that in the ying-in ward the greatest possible care is taken of both mether and child. Indeed, if such statistics were procurable, I believe it could be proved that the per contage of deaths is actually less than in the general community, owing to the excellent medical and nursing staff provided.

And yet, I fear that the statement to which your two correspondents take exception is, if not entirely true, very near the truth. It is effect the comes are discharged from the Benevolent Asylum that the danger commences; it is then that the terrible mortality occurs, and which the Foundling Hospital may possibly avert.

Most of the young healthy women obtain situations as witnurses, receiving £1 per week wages. They can thus afford to give its or Its, per week to have their own lables dry-nursed, and it is a large proportion of those that fall victims to the dry, ill-ventilated homes of the women who have charge of them, and the beslly-prepared unwholesome, and oftentimes insufficient food provided. And what is the fate of the poor little one whose mother cannot care £1 per week! Its little life is still more brist; for where is the woman to be found who will take proper care of an infant at a remuneration of only a few shillings weekly!

From my own personal experience numbers of children leaving the Benevolent Asylum in robust health have a few attributable, in a great measure, to the want of self-doestion and leve that only a mother can exercise to infants of tender age? We have a Morality Society, whose presidents, or expresidents, and committee have the confidence and respect of the public. This society will not forgot the wants of "erring and foresten women." Doubtless, something under its auspices will shortly be brought before the public, based on sound moral principles, for the good of both the present and coming generation. It will take sometime before such is accomplished; but, till then, would it not be better to wait, as it is a pity for those of kindred aim to act in schism thereto?

Yours very respectfully,
WAVERLEY.
